Last minute deal for an African Safari? No single supplement? Too good to be true? *Wildland Adventures offers amazing deal for green season safari to Zambia

Feb. 14, 2012, Seattle, WA – For travelers who can pack their bags and take advantage of last minute deals, Wildland Adventures is offering a six-night green season safari to Zambia for just US$2995.00 per person with no single supplement for single travelers, a savings of more than $1,000 per person. The one caveat is that travel must take place prior to March 31, 2012.

“If you have thought about a safari to Southern Africa, particularly as a solo traveler, you can’t beat this opportunity. Zambia is a spectacular country featuring some of the best wildlife safari experiences in Africa,” says Kurt Kutay, founding president of Wildland Adventures. “We bring you to the heart of the unspoiled African wildness using local experts to give you a truly authentic experience.”

The green season safari includes all internal flights within Zambia, guided walks through the Luangwa Valley – the best walking safari destination in Africa – canoeing down the Zambezi River and game drives in open-roof 4x4 vehicles. Four nights are spent at the award-winning Mfuwe Lodge overlooking the Mfuwe Lagoon, which is near the central section of the South Luangwa National Park – a world renowned wildlife reserve and prime game viewing area.

And what is a safari without staying at least a few nights in an African bush camp? Two nights are spent at the Sindabezi Island Camp, a peaceful and intimate camp on its very own private island on the Zambezi River just above Victoria Falls. Considered one of the Seven Wonders of the Natural World, based on its width and height, Victoria Falls is the largest sheet of falling water in the world. From here, guests are able to launch a canoe or take a sunset river cruise in search of elephants and hippopotami along the river banks.

Travelers looking for an extra thrill or a closer encounter with wildlife, optional safari add-ons such as helicopter flights over Victoria Falls, white water rafting, micro-light flights and elephant-back safaris can be arranged upon request.

“From time to time, we are able to offer these incredible value offers, which puts a whole new meaning to taking a quick getaway,” says Kutay, “Our hope is that this inspires someone to embark that trip of lifetime when previously money, not time has been a barrier.”

Wildland Adventures also offers other African adventure opportunities with more than 30 unique African itineraries (one of which, Maasailand Safari, was named “Tour of a Lifetime” by National Geographic Traveler). Destinations include Botswana, Ethiopia, Kenya, Malawi, Mozambique, Namibia, Rwanda, South Africa, Tanzania, Uganda and Zambia.
